In the 10th episode of our 12 Days of Regulatory Insights podcast series, Stephen Piepgrass, leader of the firm's Regulatory Investigation, Strategy + Enforcement (RISE) practice, is joined by colleague Chuck Slemo to discuss the unique challenges faced by local governments and businesses interacting with them.

Chuck, who has extensive experience as a local government attorney and former Commonwealth attorney, shares insights on a range of issues including compliance with federal and state laws, economic development partnerships, and the impact of local government actions on business strategies. The conversation highlights the importance of skilled legal counsel in navigating complex local government matters, such as land use, zoning, and public-private partnerships. They also delve into the intricacies of local government investigations, public records laws, and the interplay between state AGs and local governments.
