Troutman Pepper Locke LLP partner Angelo A. Stio III, who represents some of the data brokers, told Law360 in an emailed statement Friday that his clients "are grateful that the Third Circuit accepted the interlocutory appeal."

"We believe acceptance of the appeal is appropriate to address (i) the important First Amendment issues raised by the defendants, and (ii) the uncertainty created by the 2023 amendments to Daniel's Law, which have served as a catalyst for the wave of private litigations being pursued by Atlas Data Privacy Corporation."
