Troutman Pepper Locke Associate Chris Capurso will moderate a session at the American Bar Association Business Law Section Fall 2025 Meeting. Chris will guide a discussion on the current regulatory environment for auto finance during the second Trump administration. The session will focus on the Federal Trade Commission's stance as federal enforcement efforts decrease and explore whether states are increasing their regulatory activities in response. Participants will gain insights into potential strategies and predictions for how federal and state entities might manage auto finance regulation throughout the remainder of the Trump 2.0 administration.
