Troutman Pepper added commercial real estate partner Anna Altizer Dix, arriving from Baker & Hostetler.

Dix said she is bringing a significant portion of her business with her to Troutman Pepper, including four of the clients she works with. "The large-scale development work is really something that attracted me to Troutman Pepper, and I'll be doing work with the developer clients that I previously worked with," Dix said in an interview.

Dix represents clients in acquisition, disposition, development and leasing transactions, as well as in financing matters, the firm said. A significant portion of her practice, the firm said, involves representing developers in acquiring, developing and financing mixed-use student housing projects.

"Real estate has just been booming in general," she said. "I also have some experience in the health care real estate space, and there has also been a lot of movement in that space just as populations age and there's a demand for health care in different settings."
