Sean Fahey, a partner in Troutman Pepper Locke’s Health Care + Life Sciences Industry Group, was quoted in the March 11, 2026 Law360 article, “Bayer Sees ‘Light At The End Of The Tunnel’ In Roundup Suits.”

“If they get both of those, and frankly, even if they only get one of those, I think you do see the light at the end of the tunnel,” said Sean Fahey, chair of the health care and life sciences department at Troutman Pepper Locke LLP.

Troutman’s Fahey said the deal works in part because it provides an opportunity for certainty for plaintiffs but still gives them the right to opt out if they choose.

“If for some reason you think your chances are better at trial, then you still have that option,” he said.
