Beyond FCRA and GLBA: Navigating State AI Laws Without Exemptions

Webinar

SPEAKERS

Ronald Raether, Jr. | Roshni Patel

Troutman Pepper Locke attorneys Ron Raether and Roshni Patel will be joined by Rick Gardner, global data protection officer at LexisNexis Risk Solutions, to present “Navigating State AI and ADMT Laws: Implications for Consumer Reporting Agencies and Financial Institutions,” as part of the Consumer Data Industry Association (CDIA) webinar series. The program will take place on Wednesday, July 22, from 2 to 3 p.m. ET.

The session will address the rapidly evolving landscape of state artificial intelligence and automated decision-making technology (ADMT) requirements and their direct impact on consumer reporting agencies and financial institutions. Unlike existing state privacy laws, many of these new frameworks do not include FCRA and GLBA exemptions, creating a new layer of complexity and uncertainty. The discussion will also cover practical, real-world strategies to assess risk and prepare for compliance, helping legal, compliance, and risk professionals move forward with actionable insights and a forward-looking perspective.
