David Harrell will take part in AIPN's panel discussion titled "Changing Mexico's Energy Sector: Amendments and Investors' Rights Under Domestic and International Law" on Wednesday, June 16 at 8:00am CDT.

Organized by the Mexico Sub-chapter, the goal of this webinar is to discuss the aforementioned measures, as well as certain domestic and international legal recourses available to domestic and foreign investors.

Specifically, speakers will discuss:

- Government actions that weaken Mexico's free energy markets, specifically, the New Rules for the Import and Export of Hydrocarbons, the bill to amend Mexico's Hydrocarbons Law, recent amendments to the power sector, and the possibility of a constitutional reform.
- Domestic claims available to private investors in the face of such measures, specifically, the nature and effects to the Amparo in Mexico and how it has been used so far.
- Treaty- and contract-based rights and actions afforded to foreign investors in protection of their interests in Mexico.
