Some, like carrier-side attorney Charles Jones of Troutman Pepper Locke LLP, foresee future fights over whether Pinto can extend to breach of contract claims brought under different insurance policies beyond UIM coverage.

"I don't see anything in the reasoning that limits it in any respect to the UIM context. In fact, it's pretty broad in the way it's written. It's pretty absolute," he said. "It seems like there will undoubtedly be fighting about it, but I read it as applying across the board."
