D Magazine profiled Elizabeth Mack, Managing Partner of Locke Lord's Dallas office, on her steadfast commitment to helping communities, and orchids, blossom. Mack, who also serves as Chair of the Firm-wide Environmental Section – Real Estate and Corporate, noted she instantly fell in love with orchids and was drawn to the flower's voluminous blooms. "What I really love about orchids is that they have these beautiful, showy flowers that last a really long time," she said.

The article highlights Mack's extensive experience involving environmental cleanup efforts both locally — in Deep Ellum, the Medical District, Trinity Groves, and Farmers Market in downtown Dallas, to name a few — and in 40 states around the country. "One of the things I'm most proud of is getting contaminated properties cleaned up so that they can be put back into beneficial use," Mack added. "Cultivating orchids is so inspiring to me, but it's equally inspiring to watch our communities grow with revitalization."
