We are pleased to share that Daniel Anziska, a partner in our Infrastructure and Regulatory Practice Group at Troutman Pepper Locke, recently joined the HC Commodities Podcast for episode 263, “Transacting on Hard Mode: Lawyering in the Energy Transition.”

In this engaging conversation with host Paul Chapman, Daniel explores the evolving role of attorneys in the energy transition, highlighting the unique challenges and opportunities facing transactional lawyers in this dynamic sector. The episode covers:

- The sources of complexity in energy transition transactions.
- Key pain points in project development.
- The impact of policy volatility on the U.S. energy transition.
- Perspectives on what the future may hold for the industry.

Whether you are a business leader, in-house counsel, or interested in the future of energy infrastructure, this episode offers practical insights into the legal and regulatory landscape shaping the energy transition.
