Troutman Pepper Locke is pleased to sponsor the Energy Storage Summit 2026, taking place in London, UK, from February 24-25, 2026. At the Energy Storage Summit, more than two thousand leaders from global power markets, defense, cloud and data, investment, mining, and manufacturing gather to discuss the next phase of market design, financing models, and strategy for the global energy storage market.

John Leonti will be moderating a panel on “Shaping Bankable Storage: Market-Tested Insights” on a panel of influential executives in the energy storage sector. They will examine:

- How developers, OEMs, and asset owners can shape projects to meet the expectations of larger investors and lenders;
- How scale, standardization, and bankability are evolving in storage, and deal structures are gaining traction across Europe;
- Projects sizes, revenue models, and risk profiles that can unlock debt and equity;
- How developers can present portfolios, hybrid assets, and long-term service strategies in ways that speak to infra capital; and
- What today’s lenders are asking for on tenor, counterparties, and operational guarantees, and how the sector can respond.
