Join Troutman Pepper Locke Partner Brett Mason for a podcast series analyzing the intersection of artificial intelligence (AI), health care, and the law.

In this episode of The Good Bot, Brett Mason and Emma Trivax delve into the current efforts to legislate artificial intelligence (AI). They explore the federal landscape of AI policy, including the newly established Bipartisan House AI Task Force, and proposed federal legislation, which would grant prescriptive authority of drugs to AI and machine learning. Additionally, they discuss the Virginia High Risk Artificial Intelligence Developer and Deployer Act and how states may legislate differently depending on the interests of their residents.
