Bryan Haynes, a partner with Troutman Pepper specializing in tobacco industry regulatory compliance and enforcement matters, is quoted in the Tobacco Reporter article, "FDA Gets Authority Over Synthetic Nicotine."

According to Bryan Haynes, a partner with Troutman Pepper, the measure could amount to an effective ban on synthetic nicotine products. "FDA is highly unlikely to authorize a PMTA in 90 days when other PMTAs for electronic nicotine delivery systems have been pending for more than two years," he wrote on the law firm's blog.
