

Press Coverage | November 23, 2021

Fraud Suit Verdict Undermines SEC Control of Cryptocurrencies

RELATED PROFESSIONALS

Seth M. Erickson | J. Timothy Mast | Mary Weeks | Douglas D. Herrmann

Pymnts.com published an article “Fraud Suit Verdict Undermines SEC Control of Cryptocurrencies” that quotes a Troutman Pepper advisory authored by Seth M. Erickson, Mary Weeks, Douglas D. Herrmann, and J. Timothy Mast.

In a ruling that gives “cryptocurrency market participants some much-needed and rarely received comfort,” according to the law firm Troutman Pepper, a federal jury in Connecticut found that four digital assets and products related to a cryptocurrency mining operation were not “investment contracts” subject to state and federal securities laws.

The verdict in Audet v. Fraser “will have wide-reaching implications” for two reasons, Troutman argued in a Nov. 22 blog post.

RELATED INDUSTRIES + PRACTICES

- Payments + Financial Technology
- Securities Litigation
- Securities Investigations + Enforcement