June 3 – 4, 2025

Troutman Pepper Locke is a proud sponsor of the Giga USA 2025 Conference on June 3-4, 2025 in Washington, D.C. Across two days, industry experts will explore the rise of the lithium ion battery gigafactory economy in the United States and the need to build secure, sustainable supply chains for critical raw materials. This year's agenda will explore the strengthening of the critical mineral supply chain in the U.S.; policy, trade, and national security impacts; investing and financing the energy transition; innovation in battery technology and sustainability; and the global collaboration and strategic partnership.

Daniel Anziska will be a featured panelist on the session, "Navigating Tax Credits, Trade Policy, and U.S. Manufacturing Goals." Dan and his panelists will offer insights into leveraging tax credits to support strategic objectives, navigating the complexities of trade policy, and addressing supply chain challenges. The session will also focus on aligning manufacturing strategies with U.S. policy objectives and exploring opportunities for growth in domestic sectors. Additionally, sector-specific impacts on energy, renewable energy, and electric vehicles (EVs) will be examined, providing attendees with actionable strategies to adapt to evolving regulations and policy shifts. This session is designed to equip attendees with the knowledge and tools necessary to thrive in a dynamic policy environment.
