

Press Coverage | October 11, 2022

Here's What a New Biden Administration Labor Proposal Would Mean for Independent Contractors

RELATED PROFESSIONALS

Christopher J. Moran

Chris Moran, a partner in Troutman Pepper's Employment and Labor Practice Group, is quoted in the CNBC article, "Here's What a New Biden Administration Labor Proposal Would Mean for Independent Contractors."

Overall, the proposal loosens classification guidelines and would therefore likely result in more workers being deemed employees instead of contractors, said Christopher Moran, a partner at Troutman Pepper Hamilton Sanders who specializes in labor and employment law.

I think Trump was narrowing it a little bit, and I think this [Biden rule] is widening it a little bit.

I don't see these [rules] as game-changing. The swings aren't dramatic.

RELATED INDUSTRIES + PRACTICES

- Independent Contractor Misclassification + Compliance
- Labor + Employment