Locke Lord's Health Care Practice Group has again been named to Modern Healthcare's Largest Health Care Law Firms list, ranking 30 in the most recent edition, based on the number of health care lawyers in 2020. The Health Care Practice Group is co-chaired by Washington, D.C., Office Managing Partner Denise Hanna.

Locke Lord's Health Care Practice Group assists clients in achieving their business objectives and enabling them to navigate the legal and regulatory complexities unique to the health care industry. The practice group is made up of lawyers with deep experience in both managed care and health insurance matters and representation of health care providers. Lawyers in the practice group have a significant record of success working closely with a variety of health care industry clients on new and emerging transactions, relationships and joint ventures spurred by government and private sector health care reform initiatives.

Locke Lord represents a diverse array of national and regional clients in the industry, including health care providers, health insurers and health care intermediaries as well as investors and health information technology companies in M&A and other transactions, regulatory (multistate and federal) compliance, government relations, enforcement matters and litigation.

In 2020, three of Locke Lord's Health Care Partners were individually recognized in Chambers USA.
