NEW YORK – Genna Garver, a partner in Troutman Pepper's Corporate Practice Group, has been elected to the Board of Directors of the National Society of Compliance Professionals \(NSCP\). She will serve a three-year term.

The NSCP is dedicated to serving and supporting compliance professionals in the financial services industry, including investment advisors, brokers, dealers, and fund managers. Garver has been an active member of NSCP for more than a decade, regularly presenting at key events and contributing articles on timely topics like new SEC rules for private fund advisers and operational due diligence on managers investing in digital assets. Notably, she chaired NSCP's SEC Comment Letter Committees for both the SEC's new Marketing Rule 206(4)-1 and its proposed Private Fund Rules.

Garver has been able to grow her practice in large part because of her unique ability to guide clients through the complex maze of investment regulation. She routinely advises clients on SEC and state investment adviser, broker-dealer, and private fund regulation; Investment Advisers Act compliance programs, annual reviews, and ongoing compliance matters; and regulatory examinations and investigations.

Garver is also actively involved in women's and diversity initiatives in the financial services industry. In her new leadership role with NSCP, Garver will bring her experiences and perspectives to provide more resources and drive more professional growth opportunities for the community of compliance professionals.

Consistently recognized as a top-tier practice, Troutman Pepper's corporate attorneys guide clients through their most important transactions, critical day-to-day matters, and the full range of issues that arise in a company's evolution. Core areas of service include capital markets transactions and other significant domestic and cross-border transactions, mergers and acquisitions, corporate governance, securities laws compliance, and corporate finance.
