Press Coverage | October 16, 2024

Nike Still Owes Fees in ‘Cool Compression’ TM Case

RELATED PROFESSIONALS

Ben L. Wagner

Ben Wagner, a partner in Troutman Pepper’s Intellectual Property Practice Group, was quoted in the October 16, 2024 Law360 article, “Nike Still Owes Fees in ‘Cool Compression’ TM Case.”

“The court had no trouble ‘enthusiastically’ awarding fees again,” Lontex lawyer Ben Wagner of Troutman Pepper Hamilton Sanders LLP wrote in an email to Law360. “We look forward to Nike accepting that [its] unreasonable litigation conduct and willful infringement cost it Lontex’s attorneys’ fees. Willful infringers who make the type of tactical litigation decisions that were made in this case should know that fee shifting is the natural consequence.”

RELATED INDUSTRIES + PRACTICES

- Intellectual Property

©2026 Troutman Pepper Locke