On the Main Stage: Women in eDiscovery Should be Featured at AI Conferences

RELATED PROFESSIONALS

Alison A. Grounds

Alison Grounds, managing partner of Troutman Pepper eMerge, was mentioned in the October 4, 2023 eDiscovery Today article, "On the Main Stage: Women in eDiscovery Should be Featured at AI Conferences."

Ariana Tadler has a unique perspective because she is both a renowned litigator and founding principal of a New York law firm (Tadler Law) where she practices electronic discovery in the context of complex civil litigation, and a founding principal of an eDiscovery company (meta-e Discovery). Alison Grounds is the founder and managing partner of Troutman Pepper eMerge, a wholly owned subsidiary of the firm which provides integrated discovery services for legal matters. Both are authorities on the intersection of complex technology, legal strategy, and practice economics.
