This three-part Multistate AG Investigation series published in Thomson Reuters Westlaw is intended to demonstrate how, in the current multistate regulatory climate, our sophisticated State Attorneys General and Regulatory team can help clients in identifying key factors distinguishing potentially very high stakes litigations and investigations and more routine matters. The series outlines how our attorneys develop strategies for assembling customized in-house counsel teams trained in handling the highest-stakes, bet-the-company matters, customized around the matter's complexity, and based on its potential impact across a broad swath of a company's business areas, including litigation, regulatory, legislative affairs, communications and executive leadership.
