SEC WHISTLEBLOWER AWARDS FACE SCRUTINY AS DENIALS RISE

By Jay A. Dubow and Ghillaine A. Reid

A recent article by Bloomberg Law highlighted a significant shift in the Securities and Exchange Commission’s (SEC) approach to whistleblower claims. The article, “Whistleblower Awards Slow to Trickle as SEC Raises Bar on Claims,” reveals that the SEC has denied awards in 31 consecutive orders between April 21 and July 15, marking the longest drought in the history of the program established by the Dodd-Frank Act of 2010.

Bloomberg Law’s Findings

Bloomberg Law’s review of 65 final orders issued this year shows that the SEC has approved only about 13% of claims, a stark contrast to last year’s 37% approval rate by the end of July. According to Bloomberg Law, this decline has raised concerns among attorneys and whistleblower advocates about the commission’s current practices, with both groups agreeing that the SEC is scrutinizing cases more closely.

The article also discusses the SEC’s recent rebuke of a $14 million award given to Carson Block, CEO of Muddy Waters Capital, in 2022. Block’s award, initially granted despite not following formal tip submission procedures, has become entangled in lawsuits and allegations of inconsistent rule application. The SEC’s May 5 order disavowed the previous commission’s approach, emphasizing adherence to statutory requirements.

Perspectives on the Program’s Future

The SEC has previously touted its Whistleblower program as a key component of its enforcement efforts. In the past, the SEC also has widely publicized its whistleblower monetary awards to encourage others to become whistleblowers. The findings published by Bloomberg Law suggest that the current SEC may be trying to tamp down on the program.

JUDICIAL SCRUTINY INTENSIFIES: THE EVOLVING ROLE OF SHORT-SELLER REPORTS IN SECURITIES CLAIMS

By Jay A. Dubow, Mary Weeks, Bianca DiBella, and Chloe Ann C. Lee

Courts have shown a growing skepticism toward plaintiffs' use of short-seller reports to plead loss causation for securities claims. Recent decisions have increasingly dissected when a short-seller report will fail to survive attacks from a motion to dismiss. This article will address recent case developments across various circuits before addressing the key takeaways from this narrowing trend.

CONVICTION IN INSIDER TRADING CASE BRINGS NEW ATTENTION TO 10B5-1 PLANS

By Jay A. Dubow, Rob Evans, Stanley Keller, Eugene W. McDermott Jr., David I. Meyers, and Ghillaine A. Reid

On June 23, the U.S. Department of Justice announced that Terren Scott Peizer, founder of Ontrak Inc., a Miami-based publicly traded health care company, has been sentenced to three and a half years in prison by a California federal judge. This conviction is notable for its focus on the misuse of 10b5-1 trading plans, which are designed to allow corporate insiders to schedule stock transactions in advance, ensuring that decisions are not influenced by undisclosed material information. Alongside the prison sentence, Peizer has been ordered to pay a $5.25 million fine and forfeit over $12.7 million in gains deemed illicit.

SEC BRIEFS DISGORGEMENT AND INVESTOR HARM IN NAVELLIER V. SEC

By Jay A. Dubow and Ghillaine A. Reid

In the recent Supreme Court case, Navellier & Associates, Inc. v. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), the petitioners sought a writ of certiorari challenging the decisions of the lower courts regarding the scope of disgorgement and the materiality standard applied in securities fraud cases. On May 5, the SEC filed its brief in opposition to the petition.

RECENT SEC AML ENFORCEMENT ACTIONS' IMPACT ON COMPLIANCE EFFORTS IN THE CANNABIS SECTOR

By Jay Dubow and Jessica McClellan

Investing in the cannabis industry is not without its risks, given the evolving regulatory landscape and the varying state and federal statuses of the product itself. The Financial Crimes Enforcement Network (FinCEN) has shown it will continue to enforce its 2014 Marijuana Bank Secrecy Act (BSA) Guidance, despite the rescission of the Cole Memo in 2018, which initially informed this guidance. Additionally, for public companies and other entities subject to oversight by the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), recent SEC enforcement cases reinforce the necessity of rigorous due diligence and adherence to anti-money laundering (AML) protocols, especially given that FinCEN maintains that all financial transactions involving marijuana remain federally illegal.

FOREIGN PRIVATE ISSUERS: HAVE YOU ASSESSED YOUR STATUS UNDER US SECURITIES LAWS?

By Thomas M. Rose, Nicole A. Edmonds, Shona Smith, Jason L. Langford, and Joseph T. Cataldo

For foreign private issuers registered with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), there are several filing statuses that affect the content of various disclosures that must be made public. Foreign private issuers filing periodic reports with the SEC must at least annually assess their status to determine which SEC requirements are applicable to them. This alert explores these various SEC statuses as applicable to foreign private issuers.

TIME TO ASSESS “FOREIGN PRIVATE ISSUER” STATUS – 2025

By Thomas M. Rose, Shona Smith, Nicole A. Edmonds, Jason L. Langford, and Joseph T. Cataldo

It is time to assess “foreign private issuer” status. Foreign public and private issuers enjoy the benefits of significant exemptions and exclusions from registration under U.S. federal securities laws based on whether they are “foreign private issuers” as defined under the U.S. federal securities laws. The determination of whether issuers satisfy the definition must be run on the last business day in June for issuers with a December 31 fiscal year end.

SEC CONSIDERS CHANGES TO DEFINITION OF FOREIGN PRIVATE ISSUER

By Thomas M. Rose, Nicole A. Edmonds, Shona Smith, Alexander T. Yarbrough, and Joseph T. Cataldo

On June 4, 2025, the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) published a concept release soliciting public comment on the definition of a foreign private issuer (FPI) and whether changes are needed to reflect the current state of the U.S. markets. Concept releases typically outline a topic of concern, identify different potential approaches, and raise a series of questions for public input.

SUPREME COURT DENIES CERTIORARI IN SEC DISGORGEMENT CASE

By Jay A. Dubow and Ghillaine A. Reid

On June 6, the U.S. Supreme Court denied the petition for certiorari in the case of Navellier & Associates, Inc. v. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC). This decision effectively upholds the lower courts' rulings, allowing the SEC to continue its practice of disgorging profits obtained through fraudulent activities without needing to prove direct financial harm to investors.

SEC CLARIFIES DISCLOSURE REQUIREMENTS FOR CRYPTO ASSET SECURITIES

By Genna Garver and Ethan G. Ostroff

On April 10, the Securities and Exchange Commission's (SEC) Division of Corporation Finance (the Division) issued a statement aimed at providing greater clarity on the application of federal securities laws to crypto assets. These offerings may involve equity or debt securities of issuers whose operations relate to networks, applications, and/or crypto assets. The offerings may also relate to crypto assets offered as part of or subject to an investment contract (such a crypto asset, a "subject crypto asset"). The statement does not modify or amend existing rules, but instead tries to translate the traditional disclosure requirements for the unique realities of the crypto asset universe. Notably, the statement also does not address whether or not crypto assets are deemed securities for purposes of federal securities laws, rather, the statement addresses disclosure requirements for those issuers offering crypto assets as part of or subject to an investment contract.
