Troutman Pepper Locke is proud to be headline sponsor of Tamarindo’s Financing Energy Transition Conference, taking place October 1, 2025 in London, England.

This global conference will host many of the most influential developers, investors, and key players operating within the global clean energy and renewables market to discuss the growth and hurdles of the global renewables sector.

John Leonti will be speaking on the panel, “The energy storage evolution: future finance, development and optimisation trends.” He and his panel will discuss the latest key trends currently shaping the energy storage market and look forward to emerging technologies, markets, and investment patterns to understand which strategies can give developers a competitive edge. They will also examine:

- The main barriers to the wider deployment of energy storage and how they can be overcome
- The current outlook for co-located projects
- The latest trends in energy storage investment and most attractive markets currently
- The evolution of the energy storage market impacting the structure of project financings in the sector
- Best practices for maximizing returns
- Who are the winners and losers right now?
