Wednesday, September 21 • 12:00 – 1:00 p.m. ET

Morgan Klinzing, an associate with Troutman Pepper, will be a panelist on the Philadelphia Bar Association Tax Section CLE webcast titled “Tax Provisions in M&A Transactions.”

In this CLE program, panelists will address the implications of various tax provisions in M&A transactions. Specifically, the presentation will highlight tax provisions associated with structuring, indemnities, representations and warranties, and covenants in equity and asset deals. Panelists examine the implications of these tax provisions to different industries from a buyer’s and seller’s perspective, including in the context of transactions that include representation and warranty insurance, auction bids, and fully negotiated deals. Finally, panelists will offer strategies associated with drafting these provisions and the interaction with the corporate team (including in house counsel) throughout the negotiation process.
