In an era where climate change is no longer a distant threat but a present reality, the call for renewable energy and sustainable practices has never been louder. The Biden-Harris administration plans to eliminate fossil fuels as a form of energy generation in the United States by 2035 and has set a target of 80% renewable energy generation by 2030. These ambitious goals have put the spotlight on the utilities industry, a sector that plays a pivotal role in the nation’s energy landscape.
