Thursday, February 11 • 3:00 – 4:00 p.m. ET

The dynamic post-election tax policy environment may lead to significant tax legislation in 2021. With a 50/50 split in the senate and three significant pieces of legislation being proposed, there is a real possibility that some of President Biden's tax plan may see the light of day. What might it look like and how will it occur? There were extensions of several energy credits in the Consolidated Appropriations Act of 2021 at the end of 2020. Will those provisions have an impact on any tax legislation this year? What other provisions are being discussed that could impact the energy industry?

During the webinar we will review the proposed changes relevant to the energy industry, such as the increased corporate tax rate, extensions of existing and enactment of new tax credits, the minimum tax on US corporations and international tax provisions. We'll talk about the possibility of any of these working their way into another COVID relief/economic stimulus bill or two budget reconciliation vehicles that may occur this year. Please join Joan Arnold, Adam Kobos and Todd Reinstein from the Tax Group at Troutman Pepper at 3 p.m. on February 11, 2021.
