

Podcasts | August 15, 2024

The End of Chevron Deference: Implications of the Supreme Court's Loper Bright Decision

The Consumer Finance Podcast

SPEAKERS

Misha Tseytlin | Chris J. Willis | David Blanton Dove

In this episode of The Consumer Finance Podcast, Chris Willis is joined by Partners David Dove and Misha Tseytlin to revisit the Supreme Court's landmark decision in Loper Bright, which overruled the long-standing Chevron doctrine of court deference to agency interpretations of statutes. The discussion delves into the practical implications of this decision for federal and state regulations, the potential for increased litigation, and the nuanced impact on ongoing and future agency actions. The episode provides valuable insights for businesses and legal practitioners navigating the post-Chevron regulatory landscape.

RELATED INDUSTRIES + PRACTICES

- Consumer Financial Services
- Consumer Financial Protection Bureau \(CFPB\)