Locke Lord Partners Amin Al-Sarraf, Emily Huggins Jones and Alan Levin were selected as members of Law360's Editorial Advisory Boards for 2024. As members, they will provide feedback and share insight on how best to shape this year's reporting at Law360 within their areas of practice.

Al-Sarraf, Head of Locke Lord's Entertainment Industry Group and Partner in the Firm's Los Angeles office, was selected to serve on the Media & Entertainment Editorial Advisory Board. He advises and regularly represents public and private companies, media entities, investment funds, talent agencies and individuals in the entertainment industry on a wide variety of civil disputes and complex litigation.

For the second consecutive year, Washington, D.C., lawyer Huggins Jones was selected to serve on the Transportation Editorial Advisory Board. She advises maritime companies on the full spectrum of marine legal issues. She also provides comprehensive maritime counsel to offshore wind developers and service companies, and vessel owning and operating companies in the renewable energy and telecommunication sectors.

Vice Chair of the Firm's Executive Committee and Deputy Managing Partner of Locke Lord's New York office, Levin was selected to serve on the Insurance Authority General Liability Editorial Advisory Board. Levin advises clients across all sectors of the insurance and reinsurance industry, including domestic, foreign and overseas insurers and reinsurers.
