With no federal privacy legislation in sight, states are beginning to follow in the footsteps of California's Consumer Privacy Act. Just recently, Virginia joined California by becoming the second state with comprehensive data privacy legislation. With more states in the pipeline to adopt their own frameworks, business leaders need to stay aware of ways new laws may implicate existing and planned business practices.

Join our speakers as they discuss the basic framework of a privacy compliance program. They will focus on several recent updates in the law that require updates to compliance programs and describe what possible changes should be considered.

Speakers:

- Ronald Raether, Partner
- David Anthony, Partner
- Edgar Vargas, Attorney
