Attorney Stefanie Jackman said the administration has been clear about its intentions to shrink government and deregulate across federal agencies. The memo reflects the agency’s short-term goals before McKernan is confirmed, she added.

“They’re going to have a CFPB that does act on those priorities, however they’re redefined,” said Jackman, a partner at Troutman Pepper Locke. “They’ll need more people in order to do that. I think they’re just saying, ‘Let’s get back to the ground level.’”
