Paul Coggins and Jennifer McCoy participated in Quimbee's "Trends in Antitrust: Regulating the Labor Market Through Increased Criminal Enforcement" CLE webinar.

In this discussion of the DOJ's renewed antitrust enforcement efforts, they focus on recent cases involving wage fixing, no poach and non-solicit agreements. Paul and Jennifer, who served as defense counsel in the DOJ's first-ever criminal wage fixing case, share lessons that they and their colleagues have learned trying cases against the DOJ's Antitrust Division.
