Dameon M. Rivers

Dameon Rivers, a top attorney in the housing finance space, has joined Troutman Pepper's industry-leading Multifamily Housing Finance Practice Group in Washington, D.C. He is featured and quoted in the Law360 article, "Troutman Pepper Adds 3rd Ballard Spahr Atty This Week in DC."

In an email to Law360, Rivers emphasized the role of Troutman Pepper in the multifamily finance space, adding the firm was known additionally for its work in the market-rate housing field.

"People in the housing industry think of me more for my work on affordable and seniors housing," he said. "During my decision-making, it became clear that pairing our collective abilities will allow Troutman Pepper to continue to provide best-in-class service to our clients."

Rivers said affordability was a key issue currently facing the housing financial industry.

"Everyone agrees on that, but there are several different views on the root cause," he said. "Rising acquisition and construction costs play a role, but there are other factors at play. Ultimately, the industry must continue to be creative to create financing tools to ensure that quality and safe hosing remains available to those in need."
