CANNABIS REGULATORY UPDATES

FIRST CIRCUIT GREENLIGHTS FEDERAL PROSECUTION OF MAINE COUPLE IN CANNABIS CASE

By Jean Smith-Gonnell and Carmen Williams

In a pivotal ruling issued on October 15, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the First Circuit affirmed the district court's decision to deny a motion filed by Lucas and Alisa Sirois, a Maine couple accused of operating an illegal marijuana cultivation and distribution network, to end federal prosecution against them. The ruling is significant not only because of its direct impact on the Siroises but also due to its broader implications for the ongoing tension between state and federal cannabis laws. The case underscores the legal complexities at the intersection of state and federal marijuana laws and provides additional clarity on the confines of the Rohrabacher-Farr Amendment.
