STATE VS. FEDERAL JURISDICTION: CONNECTICUT'S RECENT BATTLE OVER INTOXICATING HEMP-DERIVED PRODUCTS

By Jean Smith-Gonnell and Cole White

The interplay between the unintentional federal legalization of intoxicating hemp-derived products under the Agriculture Improvement Act of 2018 (the 2018 Farm Bill) and state regulatory frameworks is increasingly testing the limits of jurisdictional boundaries, as shown in a recent decision remanding a Connecticut consumer protection case against RZ Smoke, Inc. back to the Connecticut Superior Court.
