CANNABIS REGULATORY UPDATES

VIRGINIA'S PATH TO A REGULATED MARIJUANA MARKET: LEGISLATIVE ADVANCES AND POLITICAL HURDLES

By Jean Smith-Gonnell and Chuck Slemp

The Virginia General Assembly has once again advanced legislation to establish a regulated market for recreational marijuana sales. Virginia is unique in that it allows personal possession of cannabis but bans retail sales outside of medical marijuana dispensaries. The legislation, HB 2485 sponsored by Delegate Paul Krizek, D-Fairfax County, and SB970 by Senator Aaron Rouse, D-Virginia Beach, passed the Democratic-controlled legislature on a party-line vote (53-46 in the House and 21-19 in the Senate). The bills now move on to Virginia's Governor Glenn Youngkin.

MISSOURI LEGISLATURE'S PROPOSALS TO REGULATE HEMP-DERIVED CONSUMABLE PRODUCTS

By Jean Smith-Gonnell and Nick Ramos

Last year, we wrote about the former Missouri governor's efforts to curb the availability of intoxicating hemp products to Missouri consumers by executive order. There are now several proposed bills in the Missouri legislature that seek to regulate hemp-derived consumable products in the state, a few of which we summarize below. In general, the proposed legislation addresses issues related to youth access, licensing, taxation, advertising and marketing, testing, and labeling. This type of proposed legislation is worth monitoring in Missouri, and other states, as states take more aggressive action to prohibit or regulate the availability of such products to consumers in the absence of a coherent, federal regulatory framework.
