

Troutman Pepper Locke Partner Sheri Adler Appointed President of NASPP Philadelphia Chapter

PHILADELPHIA – Sheri Adler, an employee benefits and executive compensation partner at Troutman Pepper Locke, has been appointed president of the Philadelphia chapter of the National Association of Stock Plan Professionals (NASPP). The NASPP is the leading association for resources, education, and community building to advance the careers and knowledge of professionals working with stock plans.

Adler is a trusted advisor to companies on all aspects of executive compensation. As a go-to resource throughout all stages of a company's life cycle, clients appreciate her forward-thinking, practical advice, and ability to navigate evolving and complex issues. Adler counsels boards, compensation committees, and public companies on executive and director compensation, incentive equity and cash programs, and the employee benefits and compensation aspects of major transactions, including mergers, acquisitions, and public offerings. Known for her collaborative, solution-oriented style, she is also a visible leader within the firm and the broader executive compensation community, frequently writing and speaking on emerging trends at the intersection of securities, disclosure, tax, and governance.

Troutman Pepper Locke's nationally recognized employee benefits and executive compensation team develops tailored strategies that help mitigate risk and advance clients' goals. Clients rely on the firm for every aspect of their compensation, benefits, and compliance needs — from designing, drafting, and implementing plans and agreements to counseling on compliance, fiduciary duties, and plan administration. Through client work in all major sectors, including energy, insurance, health care, financial services, private equity, pharmaceuticals, manufacturing, and technology, Troutman Pepper Locke attorneys offer industry-specific insights and perspectives.
