SCOTX Clarifies Standards for Challenging Civil Investigative Demands

By Troutman Pepper Locke State Attorneys General Team

In its recent decision in Office of the Attorney General v. PFLAG, Inc., the Texas Supreme Court addressed the scope of the attorney general's (AG) authority to issue civil investigative demands (CIDs) under the Deceptive Trade Practices Act (DTPA). The dispute arose against the backdrop of State v. Loe, a case challenging Texas's statutory ban on certain gender-affirming medical treatments for minors. PFLAG, a nonprofit involved in that litigation, received a CID issued by the Office of the AG (OAG) based on statements made in a supporting affidavit, which led the OAG to assert that PFLAG may have information relevant to potential misrepresentations by medical providers to insurance companies.

Illinois AG Defends State's Interchange Fees Prohibition and Data Usage Limitation on Appeal

By Troutman Pepper Locke State Attorneys General Team

The Illinois attorney general (AG) recently filed a brief defending the Illinois Interchange Fee Prohibition Act (IFPA) in an appeal arising out of litigation captioned Illinois Bankers Association v. Raoul. The AG asked the Seventh Circuit to affirm a lower court's decision to uphold the IFPA's ban on certain interchange fees, also known as card "swipe" fees. The industry argues that the law is unconstitutional or inconsistent with federal law. The AG also asked the Seventh Circuit to overturn the lower court's decision that the act's data usage limitation is preempted by federal law.
