SAN FRANCISCO – Troutman Pepper announced today that Kalama Lui-Kwan, a partner in the Consumer Financial Services Practice Group, will become office managing partner (OMP) of the San Francisco office, effective May 1, 2022. In addition to Lui-Kwan, Troutman Pepper also announced that four other attorneys have been named as new OMPs in the firm’s Boston, Chicago, Princeton, and Los Angeles offices.

“We are grateful for Kalama’s willingness to take on this important leadership role in addition to the demands of his busy practice,” said Tom Cole, Troutman Pepper Managing Partner. “Kalama will continue to build on his predecessor’s efforts, focusing on strategic growth and actively representing our firm in the local community.”

“The talent we have in San Francisco is remarkable, and I’m privileged to take on this leadership role as office managing partner,” said Lui-Kwan. “I am excited to be a part of the Firm’s strategy to grow the office, find new ways to support our clients, and strengthen our ties to the Bay Area community.”

Lui-Kwan has a national litigation practice representing parties in complex commercial disputes arising out of M&A deals. He also represents consumer-facing companies in class actions and regulatory investigations. He regularly advises fintechs and national banks on regulatory and compliance matters and counsels financial institutions on the development of new products and services with their partners in the fintech space.

The other new OMPs, their offices, and practice groups are:

- Tambry Bradford, Los Angeles, Business Litigation
- Miranda Hooker, Boston, Health Sciences Litigation
- Susan Charles, Chicago, Environmental and Natural Resources
- Delia Donahue, Princeton, Finance and Restructuring
