RICHMOND – David Anthony, a partner in Troutman Pepper’s Consumer Financial Services Practice Group, has successfully completed a three-year term as Chair of the Boyd-Graves Conference. The Boyd-Graves Conference is a prestigious assembly of legal professionals dedicated to improving civil practice in Virginia through collaborative efforts and consensus-building.

Since its inception in 1978, the Conference has evolved from an informal gathering at the Tides Inn in Irvington to a meticulously organized event attended by nearly 100 lawyers, professors, and judges representing a wide array of practices throughout the Commonwealth. The Conference focuses on the advancement of Virginia’s civil procedure. The Conference’s Steering Committee plans the event and selects the topics studied by committees of Conference members for consideration by the Conference.

In addition to serving as Chair, Anthony previously served as the Secretary/Treasurer and a member of the Conference’s Steering Committee. His leadership has continued the Conference’s unique mission of fostering legal excellence, innovation, collaboration and the administration of justice for civil litigation in Virginia through legislative and rule changes. His contributions have furthered the Boyd-Graves Conference’s legacy of improving the rule of law in Virginia.

“David’s service to the Boyd-Graves Conference continues the proud heritage of the firm to be leaders in the bar and in our communities,” said Michael Lacy, Chair of Troutman Pepper’s Consumer Financial Services Practice Group. “The Boyd-Graves Conference is rightly recognized for its valuable role in civil litigation reform in Virginia, and David’s selfless contributions to the Boyd-Graves Conference over many years are certainly worthy of acknowledgement and commendation.”

At Troutman Pepper, Anthony handles class action and regulatory enforcement litigation against consumer financial services businesses and other highly regulated companies across the United States. He is a frequent writer and speaker on issues of significance in the consumer financial services industry.
