ATLANTA – Troutman Pepper and Partner Anne Loomis have been named among the 2024 Wind Investment Awards finalists. The firm was shortlisted in the 'Legal Advisory of the Year' and 'Project Finance Deal of the Year' categories and Loomis was named a finalist in the 'Rising Star' category. Winners of the Wind Investment Awards will be announced at the 2024 Wind Investment Awards on May 23.

The annual Wind Investment Awards celebrate best practice in the global onshore and offshore wind industry, incorporating innovation, financing, project development and asset management. Hosted by global renewable energy and clean technology community, Tamarindo, the awards unite prominent decision-makers to enable opportunities to network and forge long-term business connections.

Troutman Pepper is listed among nine firms shortlisted for the 'Legal Advisory of the Year' award which recognizes firms who have displayed a successful track record over the last 12 months by providing good legal stewardship to clients. The firm was also named a finalist in the 'Project Finance Deal of The Year' for Troutman Pepper's representation of Serena Energy (formerly known as Omega Energia), Latin America's largest renewable energy company, in connection with the construction debt, tax equity, and back-leverage debt of Goodnight I, a 252MW wind farm in Armstrong County, Texas.

Loomis is among nine individuals shortlisted in the 'Rising Star of the Year' category, which recognizes professionals with five to 10 years of experience who display innovation, influence, and strong business performance. As a tax attorney and CPA with years of experience in the energy industry, Loomis focuses her practice on federal, state, and local tax planning with an emphasis on the unique tax issues facing rate-regulated public utilities and other energy industry clients. Her in-house experience with a Fortune 500 energy company, understanding of clients' tax accounting considerations, and face-to-face experience with the IRS make her an invaluable member of Troutman Pepper's Tax Practice and Energy Industry Group.

Troutman Pepper's market-leading energy practices help clients with their most important and complex matters throughout the United States. From renewables to conventional and emerging technologies, the cross-disciplinary team has extensive experience across the energy landscape. The firm regularly advises independent power producers, banks, utilities, private equity funds, and large corporations. Learn more at energylawinsights.com.
