FTC MAKES GOOD ON ITS PROMISE TO RAMP UP RIGHT-TO-REPAIR ENFORCEMENT

By Stephen Piepgrass and Abbey Thornhill

As detailed in our articles earlier this year, the “right to repair” movement has gained significant steam in the last year. The right to repair movement is an effort focused on ensuring that consumers and aftermarket businesses have the ability to repair, maintain, and/or modify the devices and equipment consumers purchase. By John West, Nick Ramos, and Eric Smith*

The Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals recently ruled in favor of a craft beer producer over the Texas Alcohol Control Board (TABC) in a case that asked which brewers can sell beer to customers for off-premises consumption. In an opinion foaming over with beer puns, Circuit Judge Cory T. Wilson ruled against TABC and affirmed the lower court's holding that the statute in question did not restrict CANarchy's ability to sell beers for off-premises consumption.

INDUSTRY COMMENTS LOOM LARGE IN DC COURT, FINDING FDA REGULATION OF PREMIUM CIGARS "ARBITRARY AND CAPRICIOUS"

By Bryan Haynes and Michael Jordan

On July 5, the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia ruled that the decision of the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) to "deem" premium cigars subject to the same federal law as other tobacco products like cigarettes was "arbitrary and capricious." In reaching this conclusion, Judge Amit Mehta relied heavily on industry comments regarding the relative public health risks and negligible youth use of premium cigars, as well as related studies — which the court said FDA either ignored or glossed over. The opinion underscores the importance of the role of public comments in agency rulemaking.
