ATLANTA – Crystal Kelley, Troutman Pepper's IT User Support Manager, has been named among the International Legal Technology Association's (ILTA's) Young Professionals to Watch. The award, part of ILTA's Distinguished Peer Awards, recognizes professionals under 40 in all segments of the ILTA community who inspire others, have demonstrated exceptional accomplishments to-date and, critically, show great promise for the future.

Following the merger that created Troutman Pepper in 2020, Kelley helped to lead the successful consolidation of two help desks. Her leadership skills were recognized in a recent podcast by ILTA for its Women Who Lead series.

"Crystal proactively volunteers to take on new tasks and projects and always grows from them," said Pramesh Naik, Chief Information Officer at Troutman Pepper. "She is committed to providing the highest level of service and professionalism in every aspect of her job and is a true mentor to her team."

ILTA recognized Kelley and fellow honorees during an online awards ceremony on January 25. ILTA serves the professional needs of more than 25,000 international legal technology professionals and their organizations. Learn more at iltanet.org.
