NEW YORK – For the second consecutive year, Troutman Pepper's Construction Practice Group has been recognized nationally among Law360's Practice Groups of the Year. The firm was among only four to receive the 2022 Practice Group of the Year designation in the Construction category.

"Earning this national award for the second straight year speaks to the incredible projects our clients are pursuing on a regular basis," said Mike Subak, who leads the firm's Construction Practice Group. "It is truly a privilege for us to advise such industry leaders on both their largest projects as well as their day-to-day details."

"Our coast-to-coast team has incredible depth and expertise across all areas clients in the construction space care about, from complex transactions to mission critical project management to bet-the-company litigation," said Partner Aaron Abraham, who was recognized by Law360 as a 2021 Construction MVP of the Year. "We are proud at the repeat recognition and remain committed to providing the best-of-the-best in client experience."

Troutman Pepper's Construction Practice Group counsels clients on some of the largest, most sophisticated construction projects in the world and is among the leading firms in total number of complex disputes tried and won in federal and state courts nationwide and arbitration forums domestic and international. Projects have included airport terminals, complex high rises, commercial office buildings, warehouse spaces, universities, medical buildings, wind and solar energy-related projects, and high-dollar international projects. The practice has been nationally recognized by Chambers and Partners, U.S. News: Best Lawyers "Best Law Firms," and local publications across the country.

Law360 received nearly 900 submissions for its practice-based awards, now in their 13th year. Editors selected winners based on several criteria, including matter strength and notability and general practice excellence.
