"Unauthorized Access provides an inside look at incident response," said Mirza, who co-leads Troutman Pepper's incident response team with Salour. "Kamran and I have helped hundreds of clients respond to data security incidents, making us well-positioned to share not only the lessons we have learned along the way, but the new developments and trends that others may have missed."

"We plan to release one episode a month and hope our clients, colleagues, and friends will follow along," Salour added. "Sometimes we will discuss the latest legal developments and industry trends, sometimes we will share real-life incident response stories, and sometimes we will have the good fortune of chatting with leaders in the industry, many of whom we have the privilege to call our friends."

Every episode of Unauthorized Access will ask listeners a question. The first to respond with the correct answer at incident.response@troutman.com will win prizes like Troutman Pepper's iconic "hacker hoodies" and custom swag.
