PHILADELPHIA – Ryan R. Deroo, an associate in Troutman Pepper's Construction Practice Group, has been named the 2021 Child Advocates Rising Star for his pro bono work with the Support Center for Child Advocates, where he represents several children in the foster care system. The Child Advocates Rising Star award recognizes a new volunteer attorney who has gone above and beyond to support a child client by providing outstanding legal representation.

"I'm honored to receive this distinction from the Support Center for Child Advocates," Deroo said. "Every child deserves a home, safe from abuse and neglect, and I will continue to do what I can to help the Support Center and children of Philadelphia. The Support Center staff have been terrific to work with, and I highly encourage interested volunteers to become involved with the organization."

In his professional practice, Deroo focuses on construction law and government contracting matters, representing owners, construction managers, general contractors, and subcontractors in complex commercial disputes. He has represented clients in both state and federal court litigation, as well as alternative dispute resolution proceedings, and frequently provides project counseling prior to a formal dispute.

Founded in 1977, Child Advocates is the nation's leading pro bono legal and social service advocacy organization serving children who have experienced abuse and neglect. The organization has served more than 11,000 children and trained more than 8,000 volunteer attorneys and allied professionals.

Each year, Troutman Pepper attorneys dedicate thousands of pro bono hours in support of nonprofits, military veterans, children, the wrongfully accused, and so many more. Learn more at troutman.com/pro-bono.
