The availability of transferable tax credits brings opportunities for an investor to reduce tax burden, while also facilitating investments in renewables. How can dealmakers best unlock the potential value that awaits, while also ensuring that risks are minimized?

- Renewables & investors and transferable tax credits
- IRS uncertainty and the effect on the tax credit market
- Risk of eligibility for tax on the seller of the tax credit
- How much diligence does a transferee need to do?
- Will there be direct tax equity after direct pay and transferability?
- Monetizing 10-year PTC's – what does that look like for an investor?
- At what point in time do you start valuing the transferred tax credit?
- Will we see markets that buyers and sellers can access? / Can you break up your tax credit and sell it to multiple buyers?
- Construction loans & bridge loans – will there be an equivalent in transferable tax credits?
- Can an individual purchase a transferable tax credit?
