Tracey Diamond, a partner in Troutman Pepper’s Labor and Employment Practice Group, is quoted in the Bloomberg Law: Daily Labor Report® article, “Worker License Rules Emerge as FTC Competition Oversight Priority.”

“Without any kind of standardization of different licensing requirements—even if you have the same requirements in different jurisdictions—you still have to get a license for each jurisdiction, which impedes an employee’s ability to be mobile,” said Tracey Diamond, a partner at Troutman Pepper’s labor and employment practice.
