OVERVIEW

Abraham represents lenders and borrowers on complex debt financing transactions such as secured and unsecured financing for acquisitions, leveraged buyouts, refinancings, dividend recapitalizations, and working capital facilities. His experience representing private equity sponsors, their portfolio companies, and non-sponsored borrowers enables him to provide forward-thinking advice. Abraham also advises corporations, investors, and limited liability companies on a broad range of corporate matters. With a strategic and practical approach, he helps clients throughout their business cycle, including entity formation, fund and deal structuring, and mergers and acquisitions.

Abraham's background includes representing tax credit syndicators in all aspects of their business, including the purchase and sale of investor interests in multiinvestor tax credit funds and project partnership portfolios.
