OVERVIEW

Adam counsels and represents clients in high-stakes litigation matters in state and federal courts in matters including real estate, corporate governance, and medical malpractice. Adam also has a robust pro bono practice in which he fights for just outcomes for his clients in habeas corpus actions, landlord-tenant matters, and civil rights actions.

REPRESENTATIVE MATTERS

Representatives Matters

- Successfully defended a major building material company from the trial court to the Delaware Supreme Court in a books and records inspection action involving the question of whether stockholders should be permitted to obtain inspection of books and records after they have filed plenary lawsuits based on a retroactive change in Delaware law that had a potential negative impact on their plenary claims.
- Represents a local government in real estate litigation matters and has achieved several favorable outcomes, including denial of class certification of a putative class, dismissal of action at the trial court level that were affirmed in the Court of Appeals.
- Represented a nursing home in a wrongful death and Georgia Nursing Home Bill of Rights Action.
- Represented credit reporting agency in actions in Georgia federal courts under the Federal Credit Reporting Act.
- Represents and advises clients in real estate litigation and regulatory matters.

Pro Bono Representative Matters

- Granted summary judgment and compensatory and punitive damages for client in a fraud and misrepresentation action in North Carolina Superior Court.
- Achieved successful plea deal to serve 12 years in prison in habeas corpus action in Georgia Superior Court for client who was 11 years into a life sentence without the possibility of parole.
