OVERVIEW

Andy focuses his practice on state and federal energy and environmental matters. Andy, a 18-year veteran of the energy industry, frequently represents electric and natural gas utilities and other businesses in energy and environmental administrative litigation, enforcement actions, citizen suits, and permit proceedings. Prior to joining the firm, Andy worked for nearly eight years at a major utility where he primarily researched and analyzed federal, state, and local energy legislation and regulation.

Andy regularly leads proceedings before the Virginia State Corporation Commission and Maryland Public Service Commission. Additionally, he assists clients in proceedings before the North Carolina Utilities Commission, the Public Service Commission of West Virginia, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, and local government authorities. Andy also worked for a major New England-based utility where he coordinated and oversaw the development of petitions for siting approval of electric transmission and natural gas infrastructure projects in multiple states.
